NOTES:

- Armor-piercing arrows generally improve on the usual Point aspect of the arrow by one.
- Blunt arrows generally convert the Point aspect of the arrow to a Blunt aspect one to two points lower.
- Edged arrows generally have an Edge aspect equal to the appropriate Point aspect minus one.
- Incendiary arrows still have a Point impact, but it is generally two points lower than normal.
- Whistling arrows generally retain the Point aspect, with a loss of two impact points.
- Stats for infantry caltrops: WQ 11, A/D n/a, P impact equals weight of person stepping on them in pounds/20. They can be defended against by rolling against Dodge while walking or running through them, or by walking very slowly. Roll once per yard walked through. Any attack calls for a stumble*2 roll, or a stumble*3 roll if the caltrops actually penetrated. Cavalry caltrops are larger and heavier, and are spread much more sparsely. They are designed to impede charging cavalry on the battlefield, and are only effective against infantry if the are particularly incautious. Combat stats for cavalry caltrops are the same as infantry ones, except that the impact is the weight of the creature stepping on them/25 (they are less sharp). Prices are per square yard of coverage.
- Lamps and lanterns generally hold two ounces of oil, which lasts for four hours (roughly two hours per ounce, and roughly 256 hours per gallon).
- The prices for consultation with a sage vary widely. Sages will usually give away common knowledge for free, if they are not insulted by the request for it. For other types of knowledge, they will charge prices as below:
 - Uncommon knowledge: 25d (identification of plants, summary of political situations, recent history)
 - Rare knowledge: 75d (reading dead languages, descriptions of foreign lands, old history)
 - Very rare knowledge: 200d (reading ancient dead languages, descriptions of the farthest reaches of the known world, ancient history)
 - Dangerous/illicit knowledge: 500d+ (reading magical texts, descriptions of poisons, heretical theological speculation)
They will never give free hints to expensive secrets, and (especially with dangerous or illicit knowledge) may not give any answers at all. The prices quoted above are, of course, a very rough guide.
